

BIG HELP: Lee Radford has praised the Vice Presidents Association.

Radford says VPs have been huge help to FC progress

HULL FC coach Lee Radford has paid tribute to the Vice Presidents Association ahead of tonight's Invincibles dinner commemorating the undefeated 1978/79 Division One title winning side.

The Vice Presidents Association is hosting the event at the KCOM Stadium this evening where FC's home shirt for the 2018 campaign will be unveiled.

It's believed the jersey will closely replicate the one worn by the Invincibles team just less than 40 years on from that memorable campaign.

But the night will also be a tribute to the Vice Presidents Association itself as they enjoy their 40th anniversary since being formed back in 1977.

From the help offered to legendary coach Arthur Bunting in terms of videoing games back in the 1980s to the present day aid to Radford in his pursuit of more

Last year the VPs helped finance a video analysis system for us that Sky Sports use silverware, the VPs have been a key cog in the FC machine.

Hull FC coach Lee Radford

Radford, for one, is an admirer of the group's work in support of the Black and Whites.

"The Vice Presidents have helped us with stuff around the gym over the years and they have aided some of the sponsorship of our young blokes coming through," Radford told the Mail.

"Last year they helped finance a video analysis system for us that Sky Sports use, the one with the Xs and the Os. That was something which I was really appreciative of. We are very lucky to have the support that they have shown us.

"We obviously went and spoke to them about it and how important our analysis is now. We use it often and it was great that they helped out.

"I know our conditioners have spoken to them regarding equipment they have needed for the gym and they have supported that as well. We all really appreciate the support."